

Is your Office Space Cold? Here are space heater alternatives:

Space heaters are notorious for overloading our electrical circuits; thus, causing the entire floor to lose power whenever they are turned on. When a number of devices are connected to the same circuit and running simultaneously, it can exceed the capacity of the electrical wiring. An overcurrent protective device in the main electrical panel shuts down power before any damage can occur during an overload – usually, it does this by tripping a circuit breaker as a safety precaution. We strongly discourage the use of space heaters in the building.

However, here are some low energy, auto-shut off solutions we do suggest:
